CHIEF JOSEPH VISITS THE GREAT FA-THER AT WASHINGTON.

Pleading For Civil Rights For His People-How the Nez Perce Indians Lost Their Land-The Promise Joseph Made and Kept.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, April 17 .- One of the most interesting incidents in the recent public life of Washington has been the visit of the famous Indian chief, Joseph of the Nez Perces. Among those accompanying the old chief are his nephew and interpreter, Steven Reuben, a brother of the faithful scout of General Miles who was killed by his own tribe, and Chief Showeway. an alumnus of the school at Carlisle. The object of this visit to the great father after an absence of many years was for the purpose of petitioning the be granted them.

Chief Joseph has lost much through the action of the white man and the Son, druggists. white man's government. He says his tribe, through the greed of the whites, were hunted from their old homes, and their present holdings are not those handed down to them by their fathers. Conventions made with the Nez Perces have been so often broken that it is not surprising to find their old warrior chief disappointed and somewhat discouraged.

Chief Joseph has never been in favor of war with the whites. His tribe did little fighting even during the rebellion, and the outbreak of the Nez Perces in 1877 was due more to white men than Indians. The tribe was at peace with the whites when an effort was made to get the Wallowa valley from them. Chief Joseph refused to surrender the valley to any one, giving as his reason the fact that his father had begged him on his deathbed never to sign a treaty which would let the region pass out of the possession of the tribe. Troops were sent against the Indians, but it was a long time before they were subdued. Chief Joseph turned out to be a rare general. Early in the campaign he outwitted the whites, defeated General Gibbon, dodged around General Howard with ease and eiuded him for weeks, but was finally cornered by General Miles, who with a much superior force compelled him to surrender. On the morning of Jan. 4. 1878, Chief Joseph handed his rifle to General Miles and as he did so said, From where the sun now stands I ght no more against the white man." Despite the fact that Chief Joseph is his sixtieth year he is still erect of rure, and his eye is as clear as it was the days when it sighted his rifle at Id game or foe. fine face is seen to advantage when speaking of the past history of his tribe and when he reverts to the surrender of the lands of his fathers. "I said in maheart that rather than have war I would give up my country. I would give up my father's grave; I would give up everything rather than have the blood of white men upon the hands of my people."

And again, when speaking of the period of imprisonment which he and others of the tribe underwent at Fort Leavenworth after the surrender of 1878, he shows deep feeling and a noble bearing. It will be remembered that the imprisoned Indians were made to endure great hardships during their confinement at Leavenworth and that following letter which she wrote ormany of them died under the ordeal. | dering the telephone: "Dear Sir-We "I cannot tell how much my heart suffered for my people while at Leavenworth," said Joseph. In announcing the prisoner's discharge the judge paid a high tribute to the chief of the Nez Perces, referring to the facts that during the war in which the tribe engaged the government's forces Joseph had not allowed his braves to take scalps, had not held women and children as prisoners and did not permit his men to destroy property. He concluded his laudation by saying that Chief Joseph has deserved and won the respect of every one. SAMUEL HUBBARD.

Dangers of the Grip.

The greatest danger from la grippe is of its resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Took Their Turns.

A young man residing in the northern section of the city had been calling for some time on a young woman, in fact he thoroughly enjoyed the company of her whole family. One evening he called and of the father who answered his ring he made his usual inquiry, "Are the folks in?" He was answered in the affirmative and asked to "step in."

He was ushered into the parlor, and after the old gentleman had engaged in conversation with him for about a quarter of an hour he excused himself, went out, and the eldest son next entered and enfertained the young man for about a quarter of an hour. Then another brother and sister, and the young man's suspicions were somewhat aroused when the mother took her turn. A little sister came next, followed in turn by the family cat, which rubbed itself against the young man's newly pressed trousers.

He gave a sigh of relief when, after an hour spent in misery, his sweetheart made her appearance. He begged of her to "put him next" to the joke, and between her bursts of laughter she informed him that "since he was trying to court the whole family papa thought they had best take turns."

It is unnecessary to say that he failed to see the joke and has ceased his at tentions.-Reading Eagle.

Look Before You Leap.

Once upon a time there was a you man who believed what the books saic He left the farm and came to the great city to make his fortune and to climb the ladder of fame. The books said a great deal about the ladder of fame, so the young man exercised himself on copybook morals and poor Richard's almanae in order to be able to chin himself up a round at a time.

He was especially strong on runaway horses, and one day, to his gratification, he saw a mad steed plunging down the crowded street. He could not see any fainting maiden attached, but still he knew this was his opportunity. He sprang for the bridle, but hit the front wheel instead and was projected with violence into the gutter. Six months later, when he came out of the hospital, he was sent to the Home For the Feebleminded for trying to stop a fire marshal in the performance of his duty.

A lady of the West village decided to have a telephone placed in her house. At about the same time she also decided to have a gas range put in. f have used Ripans Tabules with so much satisfaction that I can cheerfully recommend them. Have been troubled for about three years with what I called billious attacks coming on regularly once a week. Was told by different physicians that it was caused by bad teeth, of which I had several. I had the teeth extracted, but the attacks continued. I had seen advertisements of Ripans Tabules in all the papers but had no faith in them, but about six weeks since a friend in duced me to try them. Have taken but two of the small 5 cent boxes of the Tabules and have had no recurrence of the attacks. Have never given a testimonial for anything before, but the great amount of good which I believe has been done me by Ripans Tabules induces me to add mine to the many testimonials you doubtless have in your A.
